Santa Fe Selects RouteMatch Software to Provide Full-Range of ITS Solutions to Support City's Paratransit Services

-New Mexico's large urban transportation provider, Santa Fe, selects RouteMatch to provide complete paratransit software system for its transit services division-

ATLANTA, November 10, 2005 – RouteMatch Software, Inc. today announced that it has been awarded a contract to provide the City of Santa Fe, a large urban transportation provider in New Mexico, with its flagship solution, RouteMatch TS™. Santa Fe will use RouteMatch's scheduling, dispatching and management solutions to better manage its transit services division.

Santa Fe chose RouteMatch primarily for its scheduling and dispatching capabilities, but also values its open architecture. RouteMatch can seamlessly integrate its suite of transit management software allowing for easy linkage to other technologies such as mobile data computers (MDCs), interactive voice response (IVR) systems, fixed route integration, and automated vehicle location (AVL) technologies.

RouteMatch will deploy its paratransit software to the city of Santa Fe and has partnered with Mentor Engineering, a leading provider of mobile wireless computing and GPS/AVL devices, to deploy an integrated solution.

“We were so pleased with RouteMatch's offerings that we also purchased the fixed route display module with AVL and hope to implement it into our paratransit and fixed route services by January 2006,” states Annette Granillo, operations manager for the City of Santa Fe.
